Dear Families First in Education,

Thank you for your letter of 10 June and your email of 31 July.

We are sorry that you consider our letter of 23 May 2022 did not adequately address your concerns.

In previous correspondence, we have set out the current Welsh Government position on the proposals for elective home education in Wales (following the consultation period, and the exercises carried out therein) and the legal framework for the proposals.

The Welsh Government has always actively encouraged an open exchange with home educators around the very personal issue of home education. We fully respect the right of Families First in Education to hold and voice opinions but as Welsh Government officials we cannot express opinion and can only comment on fact.

Yours sincerely,

Equity in Education Team
